NESS WHILE TESTIFYING. After our report closed yesterday, Pei. Mc-Culloch, who was then on the stant, urther testified, as follows:—I made last nithia mixture of chloral and yellow jessamin, or olution of chloral in water and the tinetur, in about the proportions that were administered to Gen. K. by Dr. Williams, and to this I sleed what Dr. Aiken added to the contents of the stomach in his search for strychnia, to wit, tataric acid, neutralized by bi-carbonate of sodaff did so for the purpose of making a mixture as closely re-sembling the contents of tien. K.'sstomach as possible, omitting what animal subtances were possible, omitting what animal shorances were there; have that solution here, and f it be desired will show its reaction with hirosulphate of ammonia; I cannot show the raction with sulphure tied hydrogen, because the gas would render the air of the room irresirable, and proceever, it would take some hour to pass the gas through; Dr. Aiken took twent-four hours, and I took all of a night. THE PROFESSOR SHOWS AN EXERIMENT. The Professor then produced to vials, one containing the solution and the oter the hydro sulphate of ammonia, and putting part of the solution in a test tube, poured in few drops of the hydrosulphate of ammonia. Holding the tube up so that the jury could so it, he said:

At first no precipitate can be sed; this is also one of the properties of antimoy, as I hold it up to the light it is first transprent; now it is opaque; this is from the forming of the precipi-tate. The Professor then made a milar mixture in another tube; and it was show to the counsel and the experts present; then reuming his testimony he said :- If these tubes le kept with the precipitate in them some time be contents will change their color, and the suernatant liquid becomes dark, and that is not aproperty of antimony: Dr. Aiken in his testimny said that the supernatant liquids of his recipitates were dark; I have tried the reactin of this hydrosulphate of ammonia on a number of specimens of tartar-emetic, and have goten a pure orange ed precipitate from only twoif them; I have heard Dr. Aiken's testimony ato as to the con-tents, he ought to have got te metal and then operated on the metal, insteadof working on a mixture of organic matter, t what he had a right to suppose was organic intter; it is essential in all cases that the intal should be first gotten, and that in sufficient dantity to subject PROPESSORS AIKEN AND TON T'S EXPERIMENTS

DEFECTIV One of Aiken's experiment in relation to the crystals would go to show theoresence of some-thing other than antimony. The fact that crystals fermed from tartar emere were unlike those formed with a drop of the siliment proves conclusively the absence of tarar emetic. Aiken's testimony in regard to the sdiment did not correspond with his report to the prosecuting attorney. He corrected it hee. Aiken's written statement, before he corrected it here, presented a chemical impossibility, under hypothesis of tartar emetic. Tarar emetic would not have produced the result, and, if anything was proven, it would be that the substance was something else. Was provent and heard Prof. Tonry's testimony, consider his tests and results, as detailed by hin, did not show presence of antimony in the abstance he analyzed, or as having proven mything. He got a number of little spots but, even if they were metallic, they were insufficient in quantity to prove what meal they were com-posed of. The process sed by Tonry for the purity of his sulphuric acid was insufficient. in regard to the dark spos obtained by Tonry, Prof. McCulloch said, I jave passed many tons f zinc through di'uted sulphuric acid in the United States mint, andhever yet saw a speci-men of zinc so pure thafit would not give dark flecks. The spots obtained by Tonry may have been caused simply by such impurity in the zinc. Witness produced a small evaporating dish on which were about thirty spots, each of which, he stated, represented in weight one orty thousandth of a train of tartar emetic. These spots seemed larger than the largest obtained by Tonry. Winess detailed minutely the process by which hearrived at the weight of hours. The important part of this testimony is condensed in the following reply to a question by Mr. Steele: In my jadgment, the analyses of Aiken and Tonry did not prove the presence of antimony, or any poisotous substance whatever,

The cross-examination of this witness was commenced, in whichhe stated the tests used by him were not similar in all particulars to those used by Aiken. He was being examined rigidly as to his knowledge as to color tests when the court adjourned.

The Professor's testmony was very voluminous and during his examination and cross-examination he appeared to be very nervous and restless, continually shifting his position and sometimes pacing back and forth upon the step or platform which is used as a witness stand. While he was engaged in making the experiment referred to his hands shook so that the sound caused by the striking together of the glasses he was using was distinctly audible all

Shocking Domestic Tragedy. A BUSBAND TRIES TOKILL HIS WIFE AND MUR-DEES HIS CHILD.

The Buffalo Express, of Wednesday, publishes a report of a terrible murder committed at White's Corners, about twelve miles southwest

For a long time past there has resided in the village a family named Sprague, consisting of the father, H. W. Sprague, aged twenty-seven; his wife, Mary, aged twenty-five, and three chil-dren—Elmer, aged five years; Clarence, aged 3 years, and Ellen, aged nine months. The coulie do not seem to have agreed very well. Sprague being a shiftless sort of fellow, and, the heighbors say, having abused his wife, who, however, never made any public complaint against him. The family lived in the rear of the millinery store, which is a two-story frame building on Characteristics. building, on Church street.

The Sprague family retired to bed as usual on Monday evening. All slept in the samebed in the room at the rear of the store. Sprague did not undress. About one o'clock Sprague got up, told his wife he could not sleep and would build a fire. She heard him go to the buttery, where he kent his room, and the next recollecwhere he kept his razor, and the next recollec tion she had was that he was standing over her trying to cut her throat. She is somewhat larger han her husband, and succeeded in wrenching the weapon from his hand. He then rushed to the wood-box, seized the axe and dealt her several blows upon the head. Stunned and bleederal blows upon the head. Stunned and bleeding, she managed to escape out into the store, thence into the street and across to one of the neighbors. It is supposed that upon his wife's escape Sprague killed the little girl Ellen, her head being nearly severed from her body.

Passing through the store, which is carpeted, and contains a small counter, a sewing machine, and a few picture frames, our reporter passed into the room in which the tragedy accurred. It into the room in which the tragedy occurred. It is separated from the store by a glass door. On entering at the right is seen a cook stove and table, to the left is an alcove, in which was the bed. The whole place was a scene of horrible disorder. The bed was tossed by the struggle and plastered with blood, as were also the walls and floor. The mangled corpse of the murdered child was laid out upon the table, and all around the apartments were scattered the bloody traces of the terrible struggle.

A coroner's inquest was held, and the jury returned a verdict that the child came to her death from blows by an ax, inflicted by Horace

A Young LADY MURDERED BY A DISCARDED LOVER.—There has been much excitement recently in Hempstead county, Arkansas, caused by the murder of Miss Holt, a young lady. The name of the murderer and his motive for the crime are thus given in the Little Rock Republican of December 21:—"We learn from a relative of Mr. Robert Norwood, that he has confessed himself guilty of murdering Miss Mollie Holt, because he was crazed with love and jealousy. It appears they have been engaged for the past two years, and owing to the opposition of her parents, she had concluded to finally discard him. Young Norwood met her on the morning of the 13th, and had a long conversation with her. She then told him firmly that she was determined to discard him and marry she was determined to discard him and marry another party; and casually remarked that she should visit one of the neighbors that evening. He treasured up this acknowledgment, and on her way to the neighbor's he waylaid her. He was arrested shortly afterward on suspicion, and has since fully confessed the crime and acknowledged himself guilty of the murder. He is now lodged in Hempstead jail, awaiting the action of the proper authorities. Both of the families, the Holts and Norwoods, are among the first families in the state, and there has never appeared anything against either of their records. It is a circumstance much to be re-gretted by all parties, and the sympathies of the entire community are with the bereaved fami-

The Baltimore Beller Explosion. THREE PERSONS KILLED AND A NUMBER IN-JURED-HOW IT HAPPENED.

The explosion of a large tubular boiler in the saw and planing mills of the Harrington Bros., at the corner of Pratt and Fremont streets, at the corner of Pratt and Fremont streets, Baltimore, yesterday morning, as stated in The STAR of last evening, created the greatest excitement in that city. The explosion was of such force as to cause people in the neighborhood to think the city had been visited by an earthquake. The rear portion of the building was literally blown to atoms, and several persons in the establishment at the time were buried in the debris. The explosion caused the shattered building te take fire, and the alarm being sound. building te take fire, and the alarm being sounded, the department responded, and at once, with the assistance of the police force present, went to work to extinguish the flames and to rescue those buried beneath the ruins. RESCUING THE BODIES.

A number of the workmen who were slightly injured were soon rescued, and after working about an hour, the dead, mangled body of a man was taken out, which proved to be that of Wm. Harrington, senior member of the firm. The firemen who had succeeded in recovering the holy of Mr. Harrington, continued their work. firemen who had succeeded in recovering the body of Mr. Harrington continued their work, and in about an hour afterwards rescued a boy named George Frank, who was badly scalded about the face and body. Soon after, R. P. Scarborough, a carpenter, who had gone to the establishment for the purpose of getting some finished work, was taken out. His nose was broken, and his body was badly scalded. Charles Lyle, a workman, was also rescued. He was cut yle, a workman, was also rescued. He was cut about the head and legs, and was much affected by the shock. The engineer of the establish-ment, Wm. Grayson Jenn ings, was missing, a also a boy named William Clark, abon 1s also a boy named William Clark, abon is yeard of age, who had been engaged at work in the establishment as an apprentice. The city firemen worked vigorously to effect their rescue, and after laboring until about 3 o'clock p. m., the body of Jennings was found, and presented a shocking appearance. The left leg was burned off up as far as the knee, and the right leg was partially burned off. His face was burned nearly to a crisp. He could only be recognized by his clothes. Search was continued for the boy Clark, and about a quarter to 5 o'clock his body was found near the engine, all o'clock his body was found near the engine, all doubled up by the pressure of the debris upon him. His body was not burned or much muti-lated. It appeared that he had been suffocated. Eight or ten others were more or less injured by the explosion. Two mules attached to a wagon were blown entirely out or their harness by the force of the concussion.

Mr. William Shear, a clerk of the firm, was slightly injured by bricks falling upon him. He states that the first intimation he had of the calamity was the falling of the ceiling in the office and the dropping of patterns from the sides of the walls. The first intimation that the workmen had of the fatal occurrence was a terrible shock, which nearly knocked them off their feet, and a number of them leaped from the second story windows into the street, and escaped injury There were at the time from twenty to thirty men working in the various departments of the mill, and it is truly wonderful that more lives were not lost.

Mr. Charles T. Holloway, fire inspector of Baltimore, estimates the total loss to the firm upon the building, machinery, &c., at $30,000, upon which they hold policies of insurances amounting in the aggregate to $10,000.
